

Allen Dulles Notes Soviet's 'Fatal Errors'

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 27 (AP)—Allen W. Dulles today said Soviet leaders made two errors fatal to the Kremlin dictatorship in the "Tito experiment" and in introducing mass education to the Russian people.

"It is not too much to predict that the Soviet Union can never be the same as it was in the days of Stalin," said Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

In a Lamont lecture at Yale University on the life of President Woodrow Wilson, Dulles said "we are now going through dramatic days in our relations with the Soviet Union and it seems that some inexorable laws are at last catching up with the Soviet system."

He said he had raised the question 18 months ago in view of Kremlin approval of "the Tito form of heresy," how could the Soviet Union "deny the European satellites the right to a similar heresy?"

"I only wish that this question had been a prophesy," Dulles said, "because it is proving to be true. Poland has already made moves in this direction. In Hungary the people were unwilling to accept a halfway station toward liberty and have electrified the world by their struggle for complete independence."

Dulles said the Kremlin made a "fatal error" in "calculating that it could safely introduce mass education into the Soviet Union and that those who were educated in science and technology would not come to think in political terms as well."
